

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention concerns a storage device, in particular for disc media (13), characterized in that it comprises: a base plate (1) whereof four walls, namely a front wall (2), a rear wall and two side walls (4, 5), define a groove, and one or more separating elements (7), designed to be inserted into said groove, and consisting each of a core made of a rigid material, coated on at least one of its surfaces with a compressible material, and enclosed in a material (11) not damaging to the objects (13) to be stored.